Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

I agree with everything pre-written below, but would like to add that the only reason other co's and parties are suing MS is because they want more profits from the market which MS "owns" a majority of. Microsoft is playing by the rules of business. Concerning the action AOL is taking against MS now, ~saying MS is using illegal tactics by bundling IE with Windows is absolutely foolish. One could say the same thing about AOL, bundling Netscape browser and AOL Instant Messenger with their software.

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers - rather than bureaucrats and judges - will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Anonymous
